EVERY MAN'S RESPONSIBILITY

Schuyler C. Olds Would Succeed Mr. Burrows.

THE LATTER IS ALSO A CANDIDATE

Secretary Alger to Recommend to Congress in its Annual Report the Revival of the Grade of Lieutenant General of the Army—Senator McMillan's Handwritten Residence in Washington—Speculation as to What Congress Will Do.

Washington, Nov. 30.—If you want to keep track of Michigan affairs and get a lot of amusement out of the politicians it will be well for you to keep your eyes on Michigan men at home as well as in the national capital.

While it is undoubtedly true that we will have a very interesting and probably an exciting session of congress, there is going to be music in the air at home, and there will be a big band of musicians, although the star performers will be comparatively few. So keep your eyes on the politicians, particularly the Republican politicians at home.

Your correspondent will be here on duty day and night making careful reports of the doings of our senators and members of the house of representatives, and it is to be presumed that they will all render good accounts of themselves. If they do not they will be freely criticized by a writer who knows all of them, and who is on terms of independent friendship with them.

But There Are Others.

But, look about you and remember that there is to be a legislature elected next November which will elect a senator to succeed Senator Julius Caesar Burrows, whose term expires March 3, 1899. Of course, Senator Burrows will be a candidate to succeed himself; but there are others. During the coming session of congress Senator Burrows will be mindful of the fact that his successor is to be elected, and of course, he will neglect none of his duties. For that matter, it is only truth to say that he is usually diligent in his public duties, anyway. But, naturally, when he is about to face an ordeal before the people he will be more than ordinarily watchful of everything. That is human nature.

But all the while Schuyler S. Olds will have both of his eyes open all day and one of his eyes open all night looking out for his chances. His offices in Lansing may not look like the offices of a politician, but all of us who know our own state know that ex-Senator Stockbridge's old political manager would like to be a senator, and we all know his capabilities.

The people of Michigan know General Alger as a business man rather than as a politician. In his administration of the war department he has applied business methods to every branch of that department. He has systematized many matters of detail, and by so doing has relieved himself of much of the clerical drudgery which former secretaries of war have performed. He has placed upon the chiefs of divisions and heads of bureaus a great deal of responsibility, and he holds them accountable for the business-like administration of their duties.

Grade of Lieutenant General.

In his annual report Secretary Alger recommends to congress the revival of the grade of lieutenant general of the army. It is not likely that congress will act favorably upon this recommendation. The grade of lieutenant general was held by Washington and Scott, and by no other soldiers until it was conferred upon General Grant as a mark of distinction for remarkable services in actual warfare. Veterans of the civil war do not look favorably upon the revival of the grade except as a mark of distinction.

Senator McMillan is expected here on Wednesday evening, and his magnificent residence is in readiness to receive him. No man in Washington has a handsomer home. Sitting in his parlor one evening last winter, before a blazing log, he was told something of his early history. He said that when he began married life in Detroit he rented a house in a row and paid for it on the installment plan. Then he bought an adjoining house, and then another by saving his earnings. Finally, he bought the entire row, and then tore it down; and, upon the site of his beginning of a business career he erected the beautiful and costly residence which has been his home in Detroit for a number of years. As a man of means he would make splendid presidential material in any campaign. But he was born in Canada, more's the pity.

Will Have His Hands Full.

Congressman William Alden Smith is not expected here until Saturday night. As a member of the committee on foreign affairs he will have his hands full when the question of the annexation of Hawaii comes before the house. The president will urgently recommend the annexation of the islands, and the majority of both houses of congress will act accordingly. But there will be considerable opposition and the members of the committee on foreign affairs will all be expected to deliver speeches upon the subject. Moreover, if the Cuban question should come up Mr. Smith would be expected to participate in the debates.

Congressman Snover of Port Austin, as a member of the committee on agriculture, is very much interested in the proposition of the secretary of agriculture that a seed division shall be established here in Washington in order that pure seed only shall be sent to the farmers of the country. He dislikes the methods established by Secretary Morton, because the seed dealers alone are judges of the quality of the seed they furnish. No crops can be raised with good seed. Therefore, Congressman Snover believes in a seed division here for testing all seed before sending to farmers.

Snover Is Right.

The secretary of agriculture says: "Congressman Snover is right. The present method of selecting seed is not satisfactory. No seed but good seed should be distributed, and good seed can only be obtained by scientific tests made here in this department."

To Be Torn to Tatters.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota was the man who secured the passage of a bankruptcy bill through the senate last summer. He says that he expects the house to tear that bill to tatters, but he adds: "When we get into conference we will fix up a bill which will be beneficial to the suffering classes who most need such a law."
